END OF BONUS FIGHT SEEN AS
AID TO LEGION

Will Permit Organization to Emphasize Other Program
Features Says Streeter

BANQUET IS HELD

Legion and Auxiliary in Get-together Banquet Entertain State Officers

The American Legion is glad the adjusted compensation fight is over.
Forces which have attacked the legion because of the bonus fight will now be able to see some of the many constructive things the Legion has been accomplishing, Frank S. Streeter, of Linton, State Commander of the Legion, told members of the Legion, War Mothers and the Auxiliary at the annual get-together banquet of the organizations, in the McKenzie
Hotel last night.
The bonus fight was not started by the Legion, Mr. Streeter said. The Legion at its first St. Louis caucus did not discuss the bonus and at its first Minneapolis convention declined to take any action, saying the matter could be left to the discretion of Congress. It was not until after a flood of bonus bills had been introduced and it was generally accepted by leaders in Washington that a bonus bill would be passed, that the Legion took any action he said, and this action was taken when leaders in Congress asked the Legion to make recommendation.
The Legion has a broad program, he said, it includes first of all, seeing that justice is meted out to the disabled veterans of the World War.
It includes also, he said:
An Americanization program that reaches into every nook and corner of the United States.
A community advancement program, that offers to the Legion posts a remarkable opportunity for doing public good in all parts of the nation.
A program to prevent wars in the future, but not at the expense of national honor.
A sentence upon a program of reasonable preparedness for the safety of the nation, and to minimize the cost of money and lives in war, if war does come.
An aerial disarmament program, because it is now recognized, he said, that if war came it would be won or lost in the air, and many nations are engaged in a race for aerial supremacy.
Furtherance of education in the country.
Binding closer the ties of comradeship formed during the war.
Passing of Bonus Fight
"Many forces who have fought the Legion because of its adjusted compensation stand have spread the idea that the legion was organized simply for a raid on the United States Treasury," said Mr. Streeter. "We know that is not the case. The Legion was formed and had a broad program before the compensation fight became so hot, and it would have continued on its broad program had the compensation fight been lost.
It is a relief to have this fight out of the way, so that many people who were blinded to the work of the organization can now admit there is some good in it."
Mr. Streeter declared there was not a piece of legislation on the Statute books for the aid of disabled veterans that did not have its inception with the Legion.
With regard to the Americanization program, he called attention to

HOUSE PASSES
BILL TO RAISE
NAVY'S POWER

Appropriates $150,000,000 To Bring Navy Strength Up
To Agreement

Washington, May 29.—Expenditure of nearly $150,000,000 to bring the American Navy up to the 5-5-3 ratio fixed by the Washington arms conference is called for in a bill received by the Senate today from the House, which passed it last night, 165 to 108.
The measure, which was requested by the Navy department, authorizes construction of eight cruisers and six river gunboats and the conversion of the battleships New York, Texas, Florida, Arkansas, Wyoming and Utah into oil burners with the installation of additional devices for protection against submarines and aircraft.

DEVINE'S WORK IS COMMENDED

Cooperstown, N. D., May 29.—Resolutions commending J. M. Devine for his work as state immigration commissioner and urging larger legislative appropriations to aid the North Dakota immigration department were adopted at the meeting here of the fifth district group of the North Dakota Bankers association. The resolutions cited that while the bankers association objected to increased taxation, it believes that money expended through the immigration department would bring returns that would justify the expenditures.

Benefit Goal
Half Reached

While response for the Second Benefit Concert of Bismarck's Juvenile Band has been good, the goal has been slightly half reached. Cleanup committees are still at work and it is hoped that with committee ticket sales and box office receipts that practically $600 will be realized to carry the work on through until the fall.
Those who have not been seen are urged to attend the concert on the evening of May 30 at the City Auditorium.
An interesting program has been provided.
During the intermission Benton Baker will tell about the band and what it is seeking to accomplish. The entire program will probably take less than two hours and is varied enough to show progress made by the youthful musicians.
A packed house should greet the "kiddies."

Report of Nominating Committee Accepted After Election Coup Fails

ADOPT RESOLUTIONS

North Dakota Goods From North Dakotans

Roy P. Logan of Bismarck was elected president of the North Dakota Retail Merchants Association at the closing session of its annual convention here this morning. Other officers were chosen as follows:
First Vice-President, N. B. Garman, Oberon; second vice-president,
M. E. Hanson, Stanley; Treasurer, F.
W. Poglows, Glensburg; Directors, J.
R. Fitzsimmons, Mandan; Otto Ton,
Grace City; F. J. Grady, Bismarck;
C. G. Radke, Golden Valley; C. W.
Ferguson, Jamestown; A. C. Wilde,
Wilton; G. G. Schuler, Kintyre;
John Thompson, Dunn Center; E. T.
Schultz, Washburn; O. J. Dahl, Gwinner; F. P. Mann, Devils Lake; M. G.
Evenson, Madock.
The place of next meeting and selection of a secretary is left to the board of directors.
Scrapping of Officers Election of officers was preceded by a lively scrap. A slate of nominations was handed to T. Welo of Vel-va, presiding in the absence of F. P.
Mann, president, early this morning and adopted. A. W. Gussner of Bismarck appeared later, announced that the nominating committee, of which he was chairman, had prepared a report after much work, and that this committee objected to the naming of a slate of officers without notice, when the election was not scheduled until 3 o'clock this afternoon. The convention rescinded its action and then advanced the time of election to 11 a. m., the convention closing without the afternoon session. The report of the committee presented by Mr. Gussner, Otto Schumansky and M. G. Evenson, members of the nominating committee, was accepted with three dissenting votes.
Resolutions adopted by the convention included:
Indorsing purchase of goods from North Dakota jobbers by North Dakota merchants.
That district meetings be held.
Deploring high taxes, striking at peddlers, urged enforcement of the law prohibiting stores from being open on Sunday and thanking local agencies for the manner in which the convention was handled.
"We deplore the universal high taxes on all sides affecting all business and private interests of the state, cities, towns and counties," said the resolutions. "We suggest a possible means of lessening the existing high tax per individual by pointing out where taxation is being sidestepped by certain classes.
"We are referring to the peddler who goes from place to place to sell goods and wares or merchandise, and to the transient merchant who establishes a business for from one day to a few weeks or even months, but never long enough to pay any taxes in any county in which he locates.
"We respectfully recommend that this subject be referred to our committee on legislation, who may according to the assistance of the proper authorities whereby we believe these venders can be singled out so that the authorities can proceed against them and collect their just share of the taxes."
Would Close Early
A suggested resolution from the Business and Professional Women's Club of Bismarck for the closing of department, dry goods stores and groceries at 6 P. M. every night found favor with the convention
"where practicable, the exceptions being the small rural towns."
W. D. Austin reported on the Mutual Insurance Association and M.
M. Goodwill of the Northern advisated to speak this afternoon, talked briefly on advertising North Dakota.
Mr. Goodwill, referring to the recently organized Greater North Dakota Association, urged all businessmen of North Dakota to be optimistic, to learn the truth about their state and advertise it.
Thank Bismarck
The resolutions were presented by a committee composed of F. W. Peg-low, T. Welo, and F. J. Grady.
The resolutions regarding local agencies said:
"Be it resolved that the thanks of this association be extended to the newspapers of the northwest, especially the Bismarck Tribune for the liberal publicity which they have given our convention and the space that they have given to the reports of the convention program.
"That we express our sincere appreciation to the City of Bismarck, the Bismarck Association of Commerce, the Business and Professional Women's Club of Bismarck, Bismarck Retailers and Wholesalers of the city for the hospitality they have shown, and especially the Barker Bakery and Candy Company, and the splendid entertainment they have given this session."

robbers early today broke into the Farmers and Merchants Bank of Dickey and escaped with about $250

from a N. P. section house nearby.
The safety deposit boxes were broken open and their contents scattered, some of the papers being taken.
The larger denominations of bills were kept in a larger safe which the robbers did not touch.
The robbery was not discovered until this morning when a farmer coming into town early found the wires cut and Earl Sea, cashier of the bank, unlocked the building and found the vault broken open.
No automobile tracks and no clue of any kind were available to the county and village authorities, who are investigating the robbery.

J. A. H. Hopkins, chairman of the

MEANS TELLS GRAFT STORY

Now Accuses Mellon of Dealing in Bootleg Liquor

Washington, May 29.—Gaston B.
Means told the Senate Daugherty committee that he received from Jesse W. Smith in 1922 certain documents purporting to show that Secretary Mellon agreed to issue a batch of whiskey withdrawal permits in return for money which was to go toward payment of the deficit of the Republican national committee.
The alleged arrangement, the witness said, was with a man named Rex Sheldon, who was to receive the permits and pay over the money.
He added that according to the story Senator Burton of New Mexico and Fred Upham, treasurer of the Republican national committee, went to Mr. Mellon's office in regard to the matter.

FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER

New Yorker Maintains Innocence After Sentence

New York, May 29.—Harry L.
Hoffman, charged with slaying Mrs.
Maudie A. Bauer on a lonely Staten Island road, was found guilty today of murder in the second degree.
County Judge Bierman imposed sen-

Hoffman, a motion picture operator, is married and the father of two children.
On the afternoon of March 15 the body of pretty Mrs. Maudie Bauer, young mother of two daughters, was found by the side of a lonely Staten Island road. She had been shot, blatantly and strangled, and there was evidence that she had successfully fought off an assault.
Hoffman, on his way to a prison van after sentence had been imposed, passed within a few feet of District Attorney Fack and shrieked, "Now you and your lying witnesses can do up your real life in a innocent cell and wept.

M'NARY BILL'S LIKELY DEFEAT
CAUSES ACTION

Leaders in Congress Hope to Agree on Modified Meas-

WORKING OUT DETAILS

President Coolidge and Secretary Wallace Called Upon
In The Effort

Washington, May 29 (By the A. P.).
—Work on a new farm relief plan, simpler than that embodied in the McNary-Haugen bill, was pressed today by members of the Senate and House farm bloc with the intention of having it ready for introduction as a substitute for the pending measure if they find such action warranted.
The sponsors of the substitute plan have become convinced that the McNary-Haugen bill, which would set up a $200,000,000 corporation to market surplus farm products abroad, will be defeated, or at least that Senate discussion of it, if it passes the House, will be so protracted that adjournment of Congress by June 7 will be prevented.
The proposed substitute is being drafted, it is said, in such a way as to win support in both chambers to insure enactment before the political conventions, with its chief object being encouragement for the sale abroad of surplus wheat, perhaps other grains, and meat.
Farmers would be paid a bounty under provisions being considered, and administration would be placed in the hands of the secretary of agriculture, who would be authorized to use funds of the War Finance Corporation and possibly of the United States Grain Corporation.
The tentative suggestions have been outlined to President Coolidge and also have been discussed with Secretary Wallace. The President, as in the case of the McNary-Haugen bill, has not committed himself on the plan but some of those engaged in drafting it have expressed confidence that it would receive his approval.

END OF BONUS FIGHT SEEN AS AID TO LEGION

Will Permit Organization To Emphasize Other Program Features Says Streeter

BANQUET IS HELD

Legion and Auxiliary in Get-Together Banquet Entertain State Officers

The American Legion is glad the adjusted compensation fight is over. Forces which have attacked the Legion because of the bonus fight will now be able to see some of the many constructive things the Legion has been accomplishing. Frank S. Streeter, Legion's first St. Louis census, did not discuss the bonus and at its first Minneapolis convention declined to take any action, saying the matter could be left to the discretion of Congress. It was not until after a flood of bonus bills had been introduced and it was generally accepted by leaders in Washington that a bonus bill would be passed, that the Legion took any action he said, and this action was taken when leaders in Congress asked the Legion to make recommendation.

The Legion has a broad program, he said, it includes first of all, seeing that justice is meted out to the disabled veterans of the World War. It includes also, he said:

An Americanization program that reaches into every nook and corner of the United States.

A community advancement program, that offers to the Legion posts a remarkable opportunity for doing public good in all parts of the nation.

A program to prevent wars in the future, but not at the expense of national honor.

Insistence upon a program of reasonable preparation for the safety of the nation, and to minimize the cost of money and lives in war, if war does come.

An aerial disarmament program, because it is now recognized, he said, that if war came it would be won or lost in the air, and many nations are engaged in a race for aerial supremacy.

Furtherance of education in the country, closer the ties of comradeship formed during the war.

Passing of Bonus Fight

"Many forces who have fought the Legion because of its adjusted compensation stand have spread the idea that the legion was organized simply for a raid on the United States Treasury," said Mr. Streeter. "We know that is not the case. The Legion was formed and had a broad program before the compensation fight became so hot, and it would have continued on its broad program had the compensation fight been lost. It is a relief to have this fight out of the way, so that many people who were blinded to the work of the organization can now admit there is some good in it."

Mr. Streeter declared there was not a piece of legislation on the Statute books for the aid of disabled veterans that did not have its inception with the Legion.

HOUSE PASSES BILL TO RAISE NAVY'S POWER

Appropriates $150,000,000 To Bring Navy Strength Up To Agreement

Washington, May 29.—Expenditure of nearly $150,000,000 to bring the American Navy up to the 5-5-3 ratio fixed by the Washington arms conference is called for in a bill received by the Senate today from the House, which passed it last night, 165 to 138.

The measure, which was requested by the Navy department, authorizes construction of eight cruisers and six river gunboats and the conversion of the battleships New York, Texas, Florida, Arkansas, Wyoming and Utah into oil burners with the installation of additional devices for protection against submarines and aircraft.

DEVINE'S WORK IS COMMENDED

Cooperstown, N. D., May 29.—Resolutions commending J. M. Devine for his work as state immigration commissioner and urging larger legislative appropriations to aid the North Dakota immigration department were adopted at the meeting here of the fifth district group of the North Dakota Bankers association. Benefit Goal Half Reached

While response for the Second Benefit Concert of Bismarck's Juvenile Band has been good, the goal has been slightly half reached. Cleanup committees are still at work and it is hoped that with committee ticket sales and box office receipts that practically $600 will be realized to carry the work on through until the fall.

Those who have not been seen are urged to attend the concert on the evening of May 30 at the City Auditorium. An interesting program has been provided.

During the intermission Benton Baker will tell about the band and what it is seeking to accomplish. The entire program will probably take less than two hours and is varied enough to show progress made by the youthful musicians.

A packed house should greet the "kiddies."

ROY LOGAN IS NAMED HEAD OF N.D. MERCHANTS

Report of Nominating Committee Accepted After Election Coup Fails

ADOPT RESOLUTIONS

Merchants Favor Purchase of North Dakota Goods From North Dakotans

Roy P. Logan of Bismarck was elected president of the North Dakota Retail Merchants Association at the closing session of its annual convention here this morning. Other officers were chosen as follows:

First Vice-President, N. B. Garman, Oberon; second vice-president, M. E. Hanson, Stanley; Treasurer, J. W. Peglow, Glenburn; Directors, J. R. Fitzsimmons, Mandan; Otto Top, Grace City; F. J. Grady, Bismarck; C. G. Radke, Golden Valley; C. W. Ferguson, Jamestown; A. C. Wilde, Williston; C. G. Schuler, Kinross; John Thompson, Dunn Center; E. T. Schultz, Washburn; O. J. Dahl, Gwinner; F. P. Mann, Devils Lake; M. G. Evenson, Madock.

The place of next meeting and selection of a secretary is left to the board of directors.

Scrap on Officers

Election of officers was proceeded by a lively scrap. A slate of nominations was handed to T. Welo of Valva, president in the absence of F. P. Mann, president, early this morning and adopted. A. W. Gussner of Bismarck appeared later, announced that the nominating committee of which he was chairman had prepared a report after much work, and that this committee objected to the naming of a slate of officers, without notice when the election was not scheduled until 3 o'clock this afternoon. The convention rescinded its action and then advanced the time of election to 11 a. m., the convention closing without the afternoon session. The report of the committee presented by Mr. Gussner, Otto Schimanski and Mr. Evenson, members of the nominating committee, was accepted with three dissenting votes.

Resolutions adopted by the convention included:

Indorsing purchase of goods from North Dakota jobbers by North Dakota merchants.

That district meetings be held. Deploring high taxes, striking at peddlers, urged enforcement of the law prohibiting stores from being open on Sunday and thanking local agencies for the manner in which the convention was handled.

"We deplore the universal high taxes on all sides affecting all business and private interests of the state, cities, towns and counties, said the resolutions. "We suggest a possible means of lessening the existing high tax per individual by pointing out where taxation is being sidestepped by certain classes."

"We are referring to the peddler who goes from place to place to sell goods and wares or merchandise, and to the transient merchant who establishes a business for from one day to a few weeks or even months, but never long enough to pay any taxes in any county in which he locates."

"We respectfully recommend that this subject be referred to our committee on legislation, who may act with the assistance of the proper authorities whereby we believe these vendors can be singled out so that the authorities can proceed against them and collect their just share of the taxes."

A suggested resolution from the Business and Professional Women's Clubs of Bismarck for the closing of department, dry goods stores and groceries at 6 P. M. every night found favor with the convention "where practicable," the exceptions being the small rural towns.

W. D. Austin reported on the Mutual Insurance Association and M. M. Goodwill of the Northern Pacific, slated to speak this afternoon, talked briefly on advertising North Dakota.

Mr. Goodwill, referring to the recently organized Greater North Dakota Association, urged all business men of North Dakota to be optimistic, to learn the truth about their state and advertise it.

Thank Bismarck
The resolutions were presented by a committee composed of F. W. Peglow, T. Welo, and F. J. Grady.

The resolutions regarding local agencies said:

"Be it resolved that the thanks of this association be extended to the newspapers of the northwest, especially the Bismarck Tribune for the liberal publicity which they have given our convention and the space that they have given to the reports of the convention program."

"That we express our sincere appreciation to the City of Bismarck, the Bismarck Association of Commerce, the Business and Professional Women's Club of Bismarck, Bismarck Retailers and Wholesalers of the city for the hospitality they have shown, and especially the Barker Bakery and Candy Company, and the splendid entertainment they have given this session."

No automobile tracks and no clues of any kind were available to the county and village authorities, who are investigating the robbery.

J. A. H. Hopkins, chairman of the committee of 48 and also a member of the arrangements committee of the St. Paul meeting, in a statement declared he would urge all progressive groups to stay away from St. Paul because the Communists had planned to seize the convention.

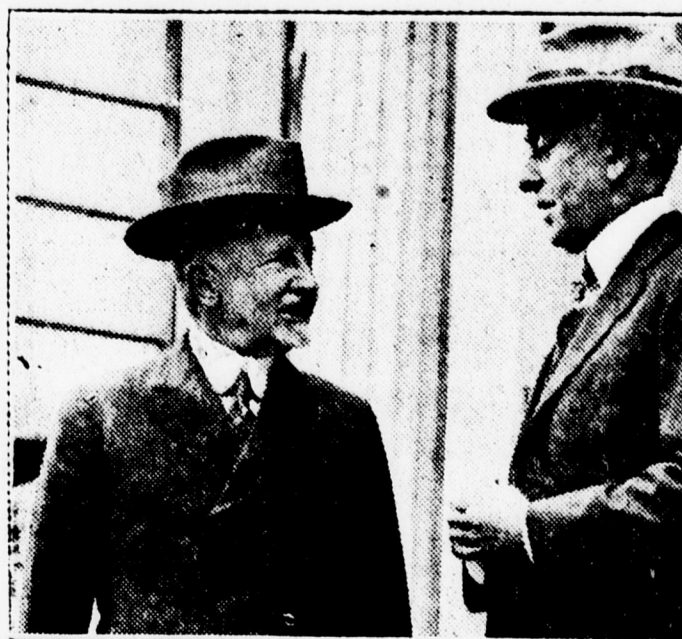

He said if it was the desire of all groups affiliated with the committee of 48 to nominate Senator LaFollette for the presidency every effort would be made to turn the progressive organizations from St. Paul to Cleveland.

Smith in 1922 certain documents purporting to show that Secretary Mellon agreed to issue a batch of whisky withdrawal permits in return for money which was to go toward payment of the deficit of the Republican national committee.

The alleged arrangement, the witness said, was with a man named Rex Sheldon, who was to receive the permits and pay over the money. He added that according to the story Senator Bursom of New Mexico and Fred Upham, treasurer of the Republican national committee, went to Mr. Mellon's office in regard to the matter.

M'NARY BILL'S LIKELY DEFEAT CAUSES ACTION

Leaders in Congress Hope to Agree on Modified Measure in Short Time

WORKING OUT DETAILS

President Coolidge and Secretary Wallace Called Upon In The Effort

Washington, May 29 (By the A. P.)—Work on a new farm relief plan, simpler than that embodied in the McNary-Haugen bill, was pressed today by members of the Senate and House farm bloc with the intention of having it ready for introduction as a substitute for the pending measure if they find such action warranted.

The sponsors of the substitute plan have become convinced that the McNary-Haugen bill, which would set up a $200,000,000 corporation to market surplus farm products abroad, will be defeated, or at least that Senate discussion of it, if it passes the House, will be so protracted that adjournment of Congress by June 7 will be prevented.

The proposed substitute is being drafted, it is said, in such a way as to win support in both chambers to insure enactment before the political conventions, with its chief object being encouragement for the sale abroad of surplus wheat, perhaps other grain, and meat.

Farmers would be paid a bounty under provisions being considered, and administration would be placed in the hands of the secretary of agriculture, who would be authorized to use funds of the War Finance Corporation and possibly of the United States Grain Corporation.

The tentative suggestions have been outlined to President Coolidge and also have been discussed with Secretary Wallace. The President, as in the case of the McNary-Haugen bill, has not committed himself on the plan but some of those engaged in drafting it have expressed confidence that it would receive his approval.

FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER

New Yorker Maintains Innocence After Sentence

New York, May 29.—Harry L. Hoffman, charged with slaying Mrs. Maude A. Bauer on a lonely Staten Island road, was found guilty today of murder in the second degree. County Judge Bierman imposed sentence of 20 years to life imprisonment in Sing Sing.

Hoffman, a motion picture operator, is married and the father of two children.

On the afternoon of March 25 the body of Mrs. Maude A. Bauer, young mother of two daughters, was found by the side of a lonely Staten Island road. She had been shot, beaten and strangled, and there was evidence that she had successfully fought off an assault.

Hoffman, on his way to a prison van after sentence had been imposed, passed within a few feet of District Attorney Fach and shrieked, "Now you and your lying witnesses can divide up your reward. I am innocent and you know it."

Later Hoffman collapsed in his cell and wept.

SAYS PRE-WAR RAILFREIGHT RATES FAR OFF

Cannot Come With Railroads
Meeting Huge Expenditures
Now, Says Flynn

TRANSPORTATION ACT

Railroad Earnings Found Less
Since Passage of Esch-
Cummings Bill

By Mr. Flynn, director of the railroad, between December, 1917 and December, 1920, increased, under the transportation act, $5,200,000 a day. Mr. Flynn said: "While there have since been decreased $800,000 a day, $5,400,000 a day of the increase under government operation still remains. Added to this the fact that since 1917, railway taxes have increased about $450,000 a day, and it is obvious that pre-war rates cannot be restored as long as pre-war expenditures and taxes are exceeded by over $5,000,000 a day."

Mr. Flynn declared railroad earnings are low, and that since the passage of the Esch-Cummings act, such earnings by railroads, they have declined.

"The net return, or net operating income of the railroads, averaged, in 1910 and 1917, $2,500,000 a day, while the average for the period of three years, ending September 1, 1923, after the Transportation Act was passed, was $2,100,000 a day," Mr. Flynn said.

"It is self-evident that the railroads being permitted to earn large profits since the Transportation Act, was passed has not kept pace with the profits earned before the act, but has been allowed to earn less than before."

Regarding valuation of railroads, Mr. Flynn said:

"Certain senators who claim that the valuation of the railroads should be based upon the market value of the securities, assert that as the market value in 1920, when the tentative valuation was made, was only twelve billion dollars, the approximate valuation of nineteen billion dollars was seven billion dollars too high. However, from the fact that under government operation the railroads have incurred large deficits, making their financial future extremely uncertain, the market value of railway securities in 1920 was the lowest ever reached."

"At the federal conference on railroad valuation, which was held last summer in Chicago, Senator La Follette and his associates criticized the Interstate Commerce Commission for not ascertaining the actual investment in the railroads and basing their valuation accordingly."

"They contend that the railroads are entitled to earn only a fair return on what the properties have actually cost. The large valuation arrived at by the Commission, they claimed, was because it had considered principally the probable cost of reproduction of the properties. The assertion is made by the spokesmen for this group of men that the actual cost of the railroads has been only thirteen billion dollars."

"This, however, is a mere guess. While the accounts of the railroads would indicate that their cost has been about twenty-one billion dollars, the Interstate Commerce Commission, after years of investigation, has found that while the tentative value of the railroads as of 1914 is $15,900,000,000, the cost is not ascertainable, and it is not surprising, since the railroads have been in process of development and construction nearly a hundred years."

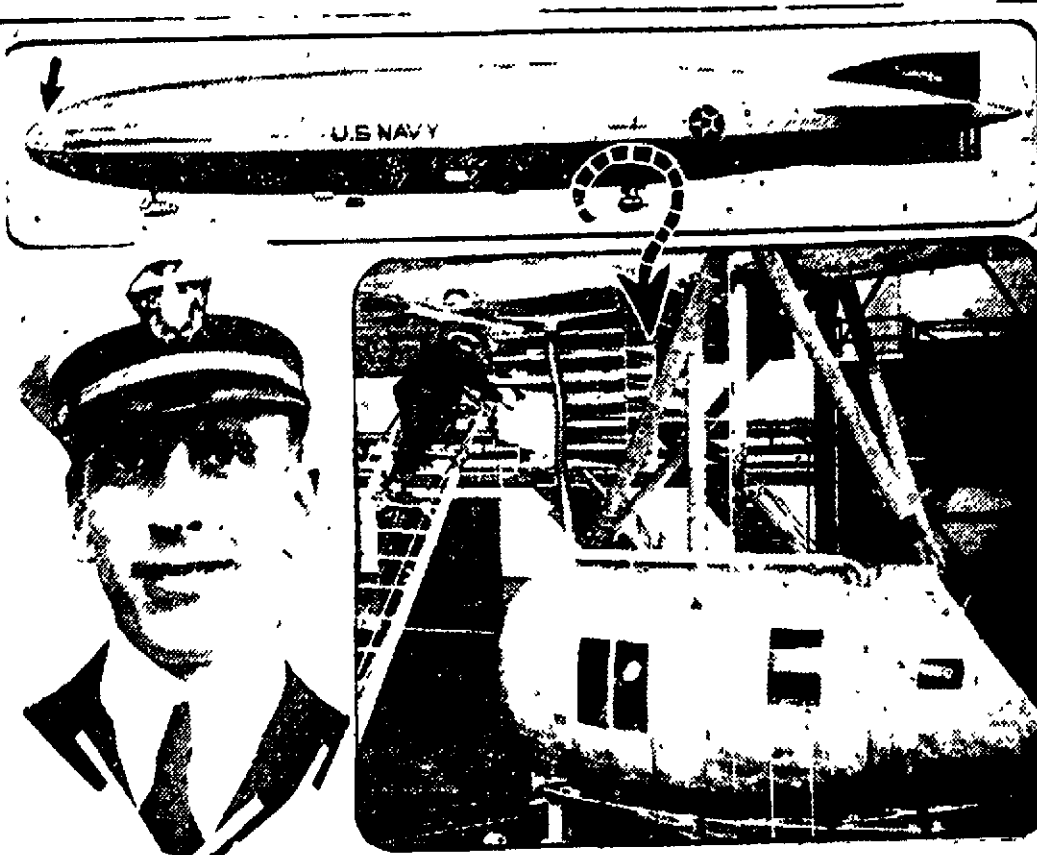

"The Supreme Court of the United States, time and time again, has held that the valuation of a railroad or other public utility, could be based on the cost of reproduction, not on the cost of the property, as it is not alone, as many other elements must be considered, in addition to its actual estimated cost, including the increase in the value of its land and probable cost of reproduction at prevailing wages, prices of materials, etc."

Reduction Effect

"The effect upon rates, supposing the valuation to be reduced six or seven billion dollars, is an important question. It is with the object of bringing rates down that a reduction of valuation is advocated. Approximately 85 per cent of the total earnings of the railroads was required to pay their operating expenses and taxes in 1923. No change in the valuation would affect operating expenses or taxes at all. If the valuation were wiped out completely, the resulting reduction of rates would be only about fifteen per cent. If it were reduced one-third, almost as much as certain senators advocate, the reduction of rates would be only five per cent. The average rate on wheat from the Dakotas to Minneapolis, and from points in Kansas to Kansas City, is less than 10 cents a bushel. A reduction of five per cent, in the rates from the great wheat-growing sections to the nearest large central markets would average, therefore, less than one-half cent a bushel. The export rate on wheat from Hutchinson, Kansas, to Galveston is 27 cents. A reduction of 5 per cent for this long haul would be only about one and one-half cents a bushel—less than the average daily fluctuation in the market price."

"The total cost of railroad transportation to the average American family of 4.3 persons in 1923 was about 65 cents a day. The reduction of 5 per cent in rates which would be effected by reducing the valuation of the roads one-third would result in a saving to the average family of

VARIATIONS OF LIVESTOCK PRICES SHOWN

Federal Reserve Bank, Tracing Course Since War, Finds Sheep Prices Best

SOME IMPROVEMENT

Conditions Now Better Than in 1919 and 1920 But Not So Good as 1921 or 1922

The ratio of profitability in livestock raising was smaller in 1923 and during the first months in 1921 than in 1921 or 1922, but larger than in 1919 and 1920, from the standpoint of the relation of the price for finished livestock to the cost of feed, says a bulletin of the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis. No analysis of conditions could show more clearly the effect of alternate periods of excessive supplies of feed and excessive numbers of livestock to be fed than the present study which this office has just completed of the course of livestock prices at South St. Paul and the cost of feed for livestock in the four complete states in the district for the years from 1919 to the present. Judging from each year's relation to the five years average, the price of livestock and the cost of feed were about evenly balanced in 1919, but feed prices held up longer than the price of livestock in 1920, so that the profit in feeding was apparently materially reduced. Feed prices declined more in 1921 than the price of livestock, and consequently the profit in livestock raising was greater in that year. This situation continued in 1922 and was directly responsible for the great increase in the number of hogs in the Northwest in 1923, which greatly increased the demand for feed in 1923 and raised the price of feed so that livestock profit diminished.

Course Downward
The course of livestock prices has been downward in the main during the five post-war years. From a high level in 1918 and 1919 there was an almost continuous decline until June, 1921, then a slight recovery lasting through 1922, after which prices were depressed and remained at a low level, with the exception of the last two months of 1923. There were temporary bulges in the price curve in the latter part of 1919 and the fall of 1920 on account of a shortage in livestock supplies, caused by the transportation tie-up, which lasted throughout the two years. However, the rapid decline took the necessary steps to expedite cattle shipments and to reduce delays at terminals, thereby making it possible for livestock, especially cattle, which had accumulated in country shipping pens, to enter the market in abnormal quantities in November.

In the first four years of this period, the price received for cattle had a major influence upon the general price level of livestock, but in 1923, and in 1922, and in the first four months in 1924, hogs have predominated and are largely responsible for the low level of the index.

Class Variations
The different classes and grades of animals for which we have computed prices during this period show some interesting variations from one another in price trends. The cattle group, after sharing in the general decline in the first part of the period, has shown a steady but very gradual recovery from the low point in 1921. The medium price of butcher steers, representing the highest grade cattle which come to market, has responded readily to shortages in supply or to extraordinary demand and exhibited pronounced peaks in the curve, adjusted for seasonal variations, in the fall of 1919 and the fall of 1920 and twice in 1923; but at the present time the low pork prices, due to heavy supplies, have reduced the demand for beef and the normal price has been slow in appearing. Any increase in fat cattle prices will benefit a large number of producers, owing to the greater territory included in the corn country producing such cattle. During the month of April a carload of fat steers, averaging 1400 pounds, was shipped to South St. Paul by Ames Kelly of Malta, Montana, near the Canadian boundary, and these steers topped the market on the day of sale at $10.80 a hundredweight.

"Stocker and feeder steer prices follow the price of butcher steers very closely, although, of course, on a lower level. At times high feed prices curtail the demand for feeder steers, as was the case in the fall of 1919 and the summer of 1922."

"The price of butcher cows, also, follows the price trend of butcher steers with fair constancy, but it is not as sensitive to conditions of supply and demand as the price of butcher steers."

"Veal calf prices were maintained at a high level for several months in 1919 and 1920 after the major decline began in cattle prices; but the weight of supplies of calves has been constantly increasing and has prevented any marked recovery from the low levels of 1921 until April, 1924."

"The price of hogs is lower this spring than at any time in the post-war years, with the single exception of June, 1923, when an equally low price level was reached. If seasonal change be eliminated, there has apparently been a continuation of the decline, including one complete cycle from a high point in 1919 to a high point in 1922 and part of a second cycle, as indicated by the decline in 1923-24."

"The price of lambs is fairly typical of prices generally in the sheep industry. Prior to the passage of the tariff act of 1921, the sheep-men were greatly discouraged and heavy marketings occurred in 1919, 1920 and 1921 of foundation stock, which caused very irregular price movements during that period. Following favorable tariff legislation, which promised increased prices for sheep, lambs and wool, the movement to market was greatly reduced and has been subnormal until the present time. Prices advanced abruptly in the spring of 1922 and advanced still further, if seasonal changes are eliminated, in the spring of 1923, when an equally low price level was reached. Feed Prices Since War

"Farm prices of the principal feedstuffs, corn, oats, barley, hay and bran, advanced generally in 1919 and the first half of 1920, but broke badly when cattle prices declined and continued to decline during 1921. During 1922, 1923 and 1924, prices have gradually increased, except for a temporary recession at harvest time in 1923 and a lesser decline in 1924."

REWARD FOR WHIPPER
Gillingham, England, May 28.—A fashionably dressed woman approached a former naval officer in a hotel here with an offer of 200 pounds if he would accompany her to Italy and thrash with a horse-whip her brother-in-law, who, she said, had been mistreating her sister. "The officer refused the opportunity."

Some "Inaccuracies" About
Department of Justice

Washington, May 28.—Attorney General Stone repudiated the senate committee investigating former Attorney General Daugherty's administration of the department of justice to call a number of officials who are or who have been connected with the department, to testify. In a letter to Chairman Brookhart, he said that "certain inaccuracies" in testimony given the committee might be corrected and "false impressions eliminated."

The officials suggested, he added, should be called before the committee made any partial report on its work. He named John W. H. Crim, who has already appeared; Augustus T. Seymour; Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, who heads the prohibition enforcement machinery; and Earl J. Davis, an assistant attorney general who should be heard.

Among special assistants, Mr. Stone asked the committee to call former Senator Charles S. Bonas of Colorado, Judge Charles Kerr, and Henry W. Anderson, who have been in charge of war fraud prosecutions. He added that he would "welcome thorough and comprehensive examination of these witnesses with respect to their personal knowledge of the transactions of professional business in the department."

MOVEMENT OF LIVESTOCK IN NORTHWEST UP

Federal Reserve Bank, in Monthly Summary, Reports Increased Sales

GENERAL VOLUME IS LESS

Minneapolis, Minn., May 28.—Livestock has been moving to market from northwest farms in good volume this spring, says the monthly summary of the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis, on conditions in the Ninth district. The summary follows:

"Livestock moved to market in good volume during April. The receipts of hogs and calves were above the ten year average and receipts of all kinds of livestock were above a year ago, the greatest increase taking place in hogs. Nevertheless, the receipts for livestock improved during the month. Grain receipts were normal with the price unchanged."

"Rural buying, when measured by lumber sales at country yards, was 10 percent below April a year ago, although showing the customary percentage of increase over March."

"The volume of business in this district, as evidenced by individual debits at banks, declined 5 percent in March and April, which is more than the customary decline for this season of the year. According to the same index, business was 7 percent below the level prevailing in April a year ago. Manufacturing, mining, wholesale trade and commercial paper outstanding were all less than the totals of the preceding month and below a year ago. The month store sales for March and April combined were less than for the same period a year ago."

"Banking conditions indicate expansion in the rural sections of this district. Selected member banks in the larger centers report reductions in loans and declining deposits. The Federal Reserve Bank had an increase in loans and a substantial increase in deposits. Interest rates remain unchanged, although normally a decline is shown at this season."

Building Less
"Prospective building activity, as shown by building permits, is below a year ago, although showing the customary seasonal increase for this month. Lumber stocks in the yards of country retailers are 14 percent below a year ago. Wholesale and lumber manufacturers are 10 percent above a year ago. Insofar as the Minneapolis housing conditions may provide a reliable guide to the general situation, it appears that the shortage of dwellings due to war losses has been fully met."

"Employment conditions, when measured by the relative position of 'situations wanted' and 'vacancies wanted' advertisements, indicate that employment is in a more favorable position now than at any time during the last four years or more. However, the situation is slightly more favorable to the employee than in March, when allowance is made for seasonal trends."

The play which was given in Grand theatre last Wednesday evening was one of the best ever put on by local talent and compared very favorably with many we have seen staged by more experienced actors. The players made trips to Washburn and Turtle Lake the past week and gave the play to packed houses at both places.

Wilton was visited with a blanket of snow Friday morning which seemed queer for this time of year. Local old timers say this is the most backward season they have ever witnessed and blame it on the past mild winter. Maybe we are going to have summer all winter and winter all summer, anyhow it begins to look that way. Local farmers complain that the grass is too short for pasturage with the result they still have to feed their stock hay. But those with friends in Iowa and Minnesota say things are the same there. Minnesota is not much ahead of North Dakota in weather conditions.

Mrs. Ole J. Olson was hostess to the Wilton homestead No. 130 at her home Friday evening.

Beautiful and impressive were the Memorial exercises which were held Tuesday evening in Grand theatre in honor of the thirteen graduates for the local high school. It was with a feeling of sorrow intermingled with joy that we gazed on the bright young faces as they received their diplomas, fitting reward for work well done. Sorrow that soon we must part from our loved school mates and joy that the long hard grind is at last completed. No more shall we hear their merry voices resounding through the classroom, but out in the busy world each will seek the vocation he or she is best fitted for. Perhaps some day some will return to guide the reluctant feet of the younger generations along the thorny paths of knowledge. Some may make their names heard abroad in the world, some will humble places in the great work of the world, but all will do their part where ever they may be that the world will be the better for their having lived in it.

The Kuhlmer family whose home is at Pasadena, California had been visiting friends and relatives at their old home in Ward county near Minot for several weeks and stopping here on their way to Bismarck and Mandan. Mr. Kuhlmer said they had left Ward county about ten years ago and were surprised to see the fine corn which had been raised by their neighbors last year. He stated that conditions in California were not nearly as rosy as had been painted, that it required work and lots of it to make a living there and he advised anyone who was so fortunate as to own land here to stick to it. He intimated that he was sorry he had left the state, although by hard labor he and his family now owned a comfortable ranch near Pasadena. He declared the man who had but a few dollars was a fool to go West as there were twice as many seeking work as there were jobs. He also said that the wholesale slaughter of dairy cattle was causing havoc with the dairy business of his state and prophesied that it would take many years to overcome the damage. Before returning to California the Kuhlmer family plan on visiting relatives in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa. Mr. Kuhlmer and family made the complete trip in their Willis Knight car and said their only expense so far had been for oil and gas. The attendance at the convention increased the second day to about 175. W. A. Donnelly, secretary said. A banquet featured the program of the association last night. Election of officers and selection of the place of next meeting is scheduled for this afternoon.

MAN CAUGHT IS NOT GUNMAN

Police do Not Have the "Terrible Tommy" Again

Minneapolis, May 29.—Investigation by Minneapolis police today disclosed that the Tommy O'Connor taken into custody late yesterday is not the "Terrible Tommy" O'Connor wanted in Chicago for murder, the police announced today.

Police took the man into custody when his father-in-law reported he believed him to be "Terrible Tommy" and after giving his name as Jack Ryan, the man admitted his true name was Tommy O'Connor but laughed at the charge that he was the escaped Chicago gunman.

A pawnbroker who had pawned a revolver for Ryan alias O'Connor identified a picture of "Terrible Tommy" as a likeness of the man Ryan and today the latter admitted it was this slight resemblance and the similarity in names that prompted him to adopt the name of Ryan.

Comparison of the man's finger prints with those of the notorious Tommy and checking up of other means of identification definitely established, police said, that "Terrible Tommy" had not been captured for a long time in the Twin Cities. After his first escape the gunman was arrested in St. Paul.

END OF BONUS
FIGHT SEEN AS

the fact that in many communities in the country people from foreign lands have settled, have continued their customs and their language and did not appreciate the spirit of Americanism. The Legion is now agitating the compulsory school system law, which at least causes the rising generation to learn the language of the country, but other activities, he said.

In North Dakota, he said, more than half the Legion Posts are in towns which have no commercial organizations.

"The Legion has an unsurpassed opportunity for community activity," he said. "Think of it—the only organized force in many communities."

He declared that the Legion would continue its community activities until it was thought of on the same plane as other organizations devoting their time to community work.

Disarmament Program
The Legion, he said, was behind the disarmament program of the Washington conference.

"No organization has a better right to act to prevent future wars," he said. "The men who went in the last war know what war is and do not want war."

But, he added, the Legion insisted that it would be just as foolish for the nation to fail in reasonable preparedness as it would for Burlington County to dismiss its sheriff and other police officers and say "We don't need them because we don't want any crime."

He said that millions of dollars was wasted in the last war because of the necessity of a quick preparedness, and that in the future the Legion will insist to its full extent that the country be prepared as it should have been for the last war—not for the purpose of fostering a military establishment but for defense.

For Aerial Disarmament
With regard to the Legion's proposal for a world conference on aerial disarmament, he said:

"Many nations agreed to the Naval disarmament program willingly, they gave up the battleships they found in the last war they had to spend their time guarding. But many of those same nations do not want aerial disarmament, because it is recognized if war came now the nation which could command control of the air would win."

More than 125 Legion men, war mothers and members of the Auxiliary attended the banquet. Dr. J. O. Aronson was toastmaster. The program included a talk by Jack Williams, State Adjutant, solo by Mrs.

John Larson, solo by Mrs. Menard Hughes and reading by Miss Madge Roney.

Several Legion men from other posts were here for the meeting. Because of the activity of Mr. Streeter, Dr. Aronson urged his re-election as state commander at the forthcoming state convention at Mandan.

Business Meeting
At a separate meeting of the Legion later Adjutant Williams, W. R. Johnson of Fargo, cooperation officer of the Veterans Bureau, and Mr. Streeter, talked. Out-of-town representatives were present from Wilton, Beulah, Ft. Yates and Napoleon.

During this talk Mr. Streeter emphasized the importance of the Legion auxiliary, saying that a post had never gone out of existence in North Dakota in a town in which there was an auxiliary.

Plans for the Mandan convention and other problems were discussed. Adjutant Williams said that death of 2,000 North Dakota service men during the war would result in the payment in cash after next January of approximately $1,500,000 under the bonus bill, to North Dakota dependents.

Memorial Day

Fifty-nine years ago the soldiers of the North and the soldiers of the South laid down their arms. It meant peace once more. But not without bloodshed. Thousands of men sacrificed their lives for the preservation of the nation's ideals. Since that time, America has grown by leaps and bounds. Our country has prospered and progressed beyond all dreams. Today, six years after the great World War, the future looks even more bright than it ever has before.

But in our visions—in our own selfish pursuits, let us pause for a day to consider our fallen heroes, to pay them homage. May 30th has been dedicated to the heroes of the war. Let us all pay our respect to the men of '61 and '65, as well as to those who fell in the recent conflict.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

LAFOLLETTE'S DILEMMA

Senator LaFollette's statement as to his attitude on a new party, made yesterday, emphasizes the dilemma which the Wisconsin Senator and many others in political life of progressive views must face. While many of Senator LaFollette's proposals in the past have been revolutionary in nature and he has not hesitated to forward radical ideas, he has always clung to the American principle of rule by the ballot and has urged his ideas in legitimate and constitutional manner. He has, also, usually refrained from entering into bitter personal attacks and as a result has retained a considerable degree of personal popularity with members of Congress who disagree violently with his views.

But the movement which LaFollette seeks to forward, he finds, leads on to further proposals. What seems to him to be perhaps an extreme proposal, but a right one, becomes moderate in the view of many of his followers after a time. Now, he finds that the Communists, bent on the same kind of a revolution in America that Russia must endure, are trying to climb his hand-wagon, not for the purpose of furthering his interests or views, but for the purposes of the Communist movement.

When Senator LaFollette finds himself up against such a situation, is it any wonder that honest, patriotic and able citizens hesitate to accept new theories and brands of extreme democracy offered as a palliative for the country's ills? May not most sporadic movements be properly subjected to suspicion in view of the disclosures made by the Wisconsin Senator and similar disclosures?

By furthering extremist views Senator LaFollette has invited men less able, less honest and less far-sighted than himself to pervert his power and popularity to their own ends. Every movement for greater power, for increased functions of the government, opens the way to attacks upon fundamental principles of the nation.

The Wisconsin Senator, in considering a third party movement, must choose either the support of all the forces of discontent, the Communists with the honest "progressives," or he must occupy a middle ground which is untenable in the political arena.

The election of a President, however high-minded he may be, does not insure the honest government. There have been too many cries of fraud and corruption raised of the so-called progressive Wilson Democratic administration than any other in many years. There have been authentic cases of wide-spread corruption in revolutionary Russia. The administrations of Harding and Coolidge, whom radicals are pleased to call conservatives, faced also the difficulty of protecting the government from dishonest and unscrupulous men. A new movement which sweeps into office inexperienced men without a powerful organization behind them offers greater opportunities for the unscrupulous than any other governmental force, a fact proved time and again. The elevation of Senator LaFollette through a third party movement embracing such forces as he says now are seeking to ride on his coat-tails, would offer just such opportunities.

The dilemma which Senator LaFollette faces is an argument for strong party government. It is an argument for the retention of the present alignment of forces, pledged to honest and sane government, with traditions and power to smash corruption and smother corrupt forces. Though dishonesty may appear at times to have the upper hand, it is true—and the reflex of the recent disclosures in Washington is sufficient evidence—that leaders of the Republican party have been high-minded and honest in their service to the government, and with the firm and resolute Coolidge to lead the party in the future, there is every reason for preferring such a government to one made up of the forces of discontent.

DRIFTERS

"Labor turnover" is a big item of expense in industry. Some corporations find, by their cost systems, that it costs them as much as $150 every time a skilled employee leaves and a new one has to be broken in.

Why not keep employees on the job by giving them this $150 apiece periodically instead of spending it in labor turnover? This is already being done by the Anaconda Copper Co. in Chile, which pays "attendance bonuses."

Some one has said that an organization is as hard to get together and keep together as a church choir.

FRENCH

One important development in Europe is that the French are taxing themselves more heavily. Recently tax receipts totaled a fifth more than a year ago.

The English for several years have been foaming about the low tax rate in France—lower capita than in England, by far. That was because France was mortgaging the future, expecting to get more out of Germany than now appears possible.

The French seem to be changing their estimates.

FARMERS

Farmers of America now are banded together in more than 10,000 organizations, Department of Agriculture reports.

What they need is one big national organization. So do consumers. Industrial producers and distributors in general get the best of the bargain because they are organized. Until consumers and farmers organize, they will have the disadvantage of a disorganized army fighting a united army headed by an intelligent general staff.

Shivers creep up a city man's spine when he contemplates what would happen if the farmers ever struck.

The new secretary of navy should be kept busy in Washington where everything is at sea.

AN AMBASSADOR RESIGNS

When Cyrus E. Woods, American Ambassador to Japan, took the Tokio post it was with high hopes of further cementing the good will then existing between the two countries.

Two decades of distrust has come to an end. The Washington Arms Conference had uprooted the sprouting seeds of war that had been sown in the Pacific. The Japanese earthquake of September, 1923, furthered the opportunities of America and America's Ambassador. He worked tirelessly "above and beyond the call of duty" to help a stricken people. America felt a just pride in him. He became a hero to the Japanese people.

In early April Congress began the destruction of much that had been done by the Washington Arms Conference. The American earthquake relief and Ambassador Woods.

Alarmed by the Capitol Hill attitude on immigration, Ambassador Hanfara, Japan's representative in Washington, wrote his "Gentlemen's Agreement" letter, making the Japanese an unfortunate phrase "grave consequences." By mid-April the Senate, in a blaze of mistaken resentment, had abrogated the "Gentlemen's Agreement" and voted immediate Japanese exclusion.

The office of good-will Ambassador Woods spent months in rearing its tottering.

Ambassador Woods has asked to be relieved from his post. The State Department insists his resignation has nothing to do with the immigration bill or Japanese exclusion. The reason given is that the ambassador wishes to return to America because of the illness of a member of his family.

In ordinary times this would be reason enough, but these are not ordinary times in Japanese-American relations. While the crisis has been muted and muffled, there is nevertheless a crisis. It is fair to assume that in such a crisis an ambassador will remain at his post during that crisis if he approves the course of his own nation.

An ambassador who does not approve the policy of his own nation asks to be relieved. Some days ago in Tokio Ambassador Woods publicly expressed his disapproval of the immigration bill. The news of his intended resignation, known to the State Department about May 1, followed.

Mr. Wood's retirement comes at an awkward and embarrassing time. Few Americans stand so high in Japan or could be so helpful in bringing about a renewed understanding between Tokio and Washington. Official Washington will make the best of a new and disappointing turn in a delicate situation.

Those, however, who realize how earnestly Ambassador Woods has labored, how much he has accomplished and how high his hopes were for his note that two weeks before May 1 the Senate of the United States had destroyed much that he, his predecessors and a generous nation had done through many years.—New York Post.

MR. YOUNG'S APPOINTMENT

A Washington dispatch to the Times-Record this morning conveys intelligence that Hon. George M. Young, congressman from this district, has been appointed judge of the Customs Court of New York by President Coolidge and later confirmed by the senate, will remain in congress until the end of the present session unless the session is unduly prolonged. The new judge is receiving telegrams and congratulations from No. Dakota and elsewhere and it is certainly a great pleasure for the editor of this paper to join with Mr. Young's many friends in offering belated congratulations. We regret very much having Mr. Young and his estimable family move permanently from Valley City where they have lived so many years and have so many good friends. As a congressman Mr. Young has done well and as a judge we feel that he will give efficient service to the government in that position. Our best wishes go out to him for continued success in his new work. Valley City will always have a warm greeting for the Youngs any time they feel like coming back to the old home town.—Valley City Times-Record.

HARRISON SOUNDS KEYNOTE

Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, by agreement of all concerned, is to be temporary chairman of the national Democratic convention which meets in New York city on Tuesday, June 24. Certainly Pat is a good man for the job. He can point with pride and view with alarm as well as any man of any party whatsoever. His full name, by the way, is Byron Patton Harrison; but no one knows that unless he takes time to look it up. The senator went to New York to attend the obsequies of the late Charles F. Murphy, and rumor has it that at that time he was slated for this honor. Be that as it may, everyone is happy. Pat will be fair.

He is supposed to be at least mildly for the nomination of McAdoo, and that statesman who was made, expressed himself, in the language of the lamented Roosevelt, as being "delighted."

There is a suspicion that Harrison was a selection of the Smith boomers. However that may be, the Mr. Roosevelt who ran with Cox in 1920, and who is now managing Smith's canvass, said he was "very greatly pleased."

Not to be out of the orchestra, a man from Alabama, who handles some of the details for Senator Oscar W. Underwood, was right in line for the eloquent Mississippi. All this is perfectly satisfying.

Maytime Madness

One wonders if Mr. Bryan was consulted. Probably not. He was not around the hotel anyway.

It is not known how the agreed-upon chairman stands on the mooted abrogation of the two-thirds rule. But that is not material. How he will exorcise the grand old party! How he will prove that the untiered can spend billions and collect only millions! He is credited with being a clever joker. Many a quip will be spring on the admiring and listening multitude.—Duluth Herald.

And May flowers bring June bills.

A wise candidate is a man who stands for what the voters fall for.

Anything can happen now. Insurance men held a convention in Chicago without talking off a single arm.

Nobody on earth knows as much as a telephone girl in a small town.

In Atlanta, Ga., a man sawed nine bars to get out of jail. Spring is too nice to stay indoors.

Water furnishes 35 per cent of our electrical power while moonshine supplies us with about that much crime motive.

Cotton planters are worried about the boll weevil because the boll weevil is not worried about the cotton planters.

In spite of the reported steady increase in the sale of silk stockings cotton stockings are not on their last legs yet.

Oh, what is so raw as a fever blister in June?

You must keep going around to stay in the social circles.

After they finish naming apartment houses, soft drinks, Pullmans, radio stations and candy our language will be a wreck.

The only reliable tonic for spring fever is almost losing your job.

It is very hard to drink lemonade on a cool front porch and worry about the poor children's milk shortage.

Books, we have found, are the only things which speak volumes.

Archaeologists think they have found remnants of the Ten Commandment tablets, all broken, of course.

HIGH AND BROAD JUMP IN YARD

Backyard Playgrounds

By W. C. Batchelor

Jumping for either height or distance holds the interest of an athletically inclined boy or girl from an early age until maturity. These activities are of the more vigorous type, calling for accuracy, speed and maximum effort.

The equipment is so simple that almost any boy of 12 or more can construct it. The cost is almost negligible. Here are two types of home-made high jump standards:

Material needed:
Two pieces, 1½ by 1½ inches by 6 feet (uprights).

One piece, 1 inch by 1½ inches by 6 feet (base).

Two pounds No. 8 casing nails.

A good standard can also be made by placing the upright in an old bucket filled with concrete. A five-gallon can cut through the middle will make ideal forms for a pair of standard bases. A piece should be nailed across the bottom of the upright to anchor it in the cement.

Nails may be driven in the upright every inch or every two inches, or holes may be bored through, and movable spikes used. A bamboo fishing pole makes the best cross-bar, but a rope weighted at the ends will do.

In a regular meet a space 12 feet square is spaced up and spaded usually mixed with the soil, to keep it from packing. However, a much smaller pit will suffice for practice.

For the broad jump a piece of 2 by 6-inch board, 3 or 4 feet long, set flush with the ground and spiked at the ends, completes the "take-off." The pit is 5 feet wide and should be spaded up from the take-off to a point a little further than can be jumped.

The runway for a distance of 40 to 60 feet should be level. Sometimes the same pit can be used for both high and broad jumping, the runway for the broad being alongside of the house, with the pit in the back yard. The standards for high jump should be placed at the side of the pit, as illustrated above.

THEY GET WHAT THEY WANT

By Albert Apple

A new kind of confidence game is worked in Boston. Joe went to the movies, sporting his $725 diamond ring. A pretty girl, about 16, sat next to him.

She admired the sparkler. My, she'd always wanted to see a diamond like that on her finger. Joe was obliging. Did he have the correct time? He did. What, so late in the afternoon? Would Joe mind holding her hat while she telephoned mama she'd be late for dinner? Sure.

Joe still has the hat.

The bobbed-haired girl still has the diamond.

The ease with which women wrap men around their fingers and make them jump through the hoop, is as pathetic as it is ancient. You recall the saying that it takes a mother 21 years to make a man of her son, and only 21 seconds for a pretty face to make a fool of him. And the older they are, the harder they fall.

It's all for the best—part of nature's cunning system of biology.

About 20 years ago, when women began flocking into business after generations of seclusion in the American home, business men began to sense the commercial possibilities of a pretty face and soft voice.

The telephone companies tried male operators early in the game. But customers were so rough with "Central" over the wire, and called at the office to stage a fight so often, that the companies began to hire girls.

Restaurant men know that waitresses bring more business than waiters, as a rule. Each pretty waitress attracts her own following.

It's the same in stores catering to men, all the way from clothing to tobacco.

Beauty is a commercial asset. They're even turning elevators over to fascinating young misses. Biology is getting on a business basis.

Governments are incredibly stupid in not using women as diplomats. Germany, for instance. She might get better terms at a reparations conference if she were represented by ravishing vamps instead of solemn statistical gents with heads like gourds.

Women have become a fixed institution as lobbyists around most legislative bodies. Why not try them internationally?

And their beauty wouldn't be the only advantage. Feminine intuition and practical psychology would help, not to mention their brain power. They'd take to the game like a duck to water. In former centuries women like Du Barry, powers behind the thrones, made whole nations their toys.

The Tangle

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRECOTT TO RUTH ELLINGTON

DEAR RUTH:

I'm awfully glad you like my purchases. I thoroughly enjoyed selecting them, and I'm conceited enough to believe that I might make a very good business woman in time.

Do you know, I'm very happy to think that we started this shop, my dear. I didn't know that economic independence could be not only such a comfort but such a source of satisfaction to a woman. When I come home I want to talk to you about enlarging the shop. You know I have six thousand dollars in perfectly good money. If you think I would be very glad to do so. When I think of what we have done on three thousand dollars, I feel that we are not only great business women, but great financiers.

What I wanted to do, dear, in this letter, was not to pat either you or myself on the back, but to tell you that I have had another talk with Karl. I rather suspect that Alice is aware of the fact that I went to luncheon with him yesterday. He came to me in the morning just after breakfast and asked me if I would do this. At first I did not see how I could do it, but Karl always has been so good to me, and he seemed so cast down, that I finally decided to do the matter over with and let him unburden his soul if he wanted to.

As luck would have it, that was the day that Alice had made up her mind to motor out to Arrowhead for luncheon. She told us about it during the morning as though it were a foregone conclusion that we all would do just exactly as she had planned, and she was utterly surprised when I told her that I had some shopping for you to do which would probably take most of the day, and I expected to take a morning or less hurried lunch down town.

"Mother who was looking rather done up, said that she intended to rest all day; and dad explained that he had a business conference on with some steel men who were in New York."

"Then, Karl, you and I will go alone, together," she said.

"I'm awfully sorry, Alice," answered Karl, "but I have a conference with my lawyer. So many things have come up since I have been abroad, you know, and anticipating that we were leaving soon for Pittsburgh, I set today for the conference."

"What do you good people think I'm going to do all this time?" asked Alice in petulant surprise.

Upon this dad spoke up rather sternly.

"It would seem to me, Alice, that you are capable of entertaining, or amusing yourself for a few hours, while the rest of your family go about their individual business."

"But, dad—" began Alice.

"No buts about it," interrupted dad. "You must have shopping to do."

"I have, but I thought Karl would go with me."

"em up and I'll take 'em along. It's a good thing I know how to walk on three legs."

When the rubbers were wrapped up in a nice neat package, the old frog gentleman hopped away to the place in his grandchild's pond where his grandchild and their mother lived in a lily-pod house.

In went Granddaddy, as proud as Punch.

"Where are the boys?" he asked, looking around. "I haven't seen them since the day they were born. That was just one month ago today. This is their birthday and I've brought them each a present."

"Why, Granddaddy!" exclaimed Mrs. Frog. "How absent-minded you are getting! They're out swimming. They never come into the house at all."

"Why not?" demanded the old gentleman frog. "Why don't they ever come into the house, I'd like to know? And why am I getting absent-minded?"

"Because they haven't any legs yet and can't walk," said Mrs. Frog. "They're still little polly-wogs and have to stay in the water."

Suddenly Granddaddy thought of his birthday present. Overshoes and no feet to wear them! He blushed all over, so he did.

"Excuse me, I forgot something at the store," he said hastily. "I'll be right back." And before Mrs. Frog could get her breath he was gone.

He burst into Mister Bags' store and man-everybody jump.

"These overshoes are not the right size a tall," he declared. "You'll have to take 'em all back—and please give me three bags of candy instead."

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Tingalingaling! went the door in Mister Bags' store as old Granddaddy Frog hopped in.

"Pickles and porcupines!" cried the little furry storekeeper. "Wherever have you been keeping yourself, Granddaddy? I haven't seen you for a coon's age."

Granddaddy shivered. "Please don't say that word, Mister Bags. I have scratched it out of my frog dictionary. Would you believe it, Biontal Coon comes and sits at my front door every night, waiting for a chance to gobble me up. If I weren't as old and wise as I am, I would have made a dinner for him long ago. Heigh ho! How's every-body?"

"We're pretty well, thank you, sir," said Nancy and Nick. They liked the old frog gentleman and always did all they could to help him with his shopping.

"That's fine, simply fine," said Granddaddy, taking off his glasses and wiping them and putting them on again. "How would you like to help me pick a birthday present for my three grandsons?"

"We'd love to!" said Nancy.

"Well, how would some nice overshoes do?" asked Nick. "We've got a lovely lot of nice black shiny ones."

"Overshoes!" boomed Granddaddy in a pleasant voice. "Well, I never thought of that. I guess that would be pretty nice. Their mama certainly would be glad, too, I'm sure, for they must track a lot of mud into the house. Are they real nice and shiny?"

"Here they are," said Nick, opening up some boxes and laying three pairs of frog overshoes out on the counter.

"I'll take them," said Granddaddy reaching for his pocketbook. "Wrap

DOING WELL
Dr. C. O. Robinson was believed to be doing well in a Minneapolis hospital, where he is suffering from injuries sustained when a street car came off a "Y" and crushed him as he was getting in an automobile after making purchases at a grocery store. No word had been received at the Quain and Ramstad clinic from Dr. V. J. LaRose, who is in Minneapolis, and this was taken as certain evidence that Dr. Robinson was progressing nicely. R. M. Bergeson of this city visited him in the hospital in Minneapolis.

THE ELTINGE
Thomas Meighan in his latest, "Pied Piper Malone" shows at the Eltinge theatre, today, tomorrow and Saturday. The story is an original one written for the screen by Booth Tarkington. Lois Wilson is the girl and George Fawcett, Cyril Ring and Charles Stevenson with a flock of the cutest kids ever seen on the screen are in the cast. It's a story of sea-faring folk, ships and shipping of small-town romance with an appeal not unlike that of "The Bachelor Daddy." Mr. Meighan had a good taste of the sea in "Homeward Bound" and has tried his luck at it again.

LAFOLLETTE'S DILEMMA

Senator LaFollette's statement as to his attitude on a new party, made yesterday, emphasizes the dilemma which the Wisconsin Senator and many others in political life of progressive views must face. While many of Senator LaFollette's proposals in the past have been revolutionary in nature and he has not hesitated to forward radical ideas, he has always clung to the American principle of rule by the ballot and has urged his ideas in legitimate and constitutional manner. He has, also, usually refrained from entering into bitter personal attacks and as a result has retained a considerable degree of personal popularity with members of Congress who disagree violently with his views.

But the movement which LaFollette seeks to forward, he finds, leads on to further proposals. What seems to him to be perhaps an extreme proposal, but a right one, becomes moderate in the view of many of his followers after a time. Now, he finds that the Communists, bent on the same kind of a revolution in America that Russia must endure, are trying to climb his band-wagon, not for the purpose of furthering his interests or views, but for the purposes of the Communist movement.

When Senator LaFollette finds himself up against such a situation, is it any wonder that honest, patriotic and able citizens hesitate to accept new theories and brands of extreme democracy offered as a palliative for the country's ills? May not most sporadic movements be properly subjected to suspicion in view of the disclosures made by the Wisconsin Senator and similar disclosures?

By furthering extremist views Senator LaFollette has invited men less able, less honest and less far-sighted than himself to pervert his power and popularity to their own ends. Every movement for greater power, for increased functions of the government, opens the way to attacks upon fundamental principles of the nation.

The Wisconsin Senator, in considering a third party movement, must choose either the support of all the forces of discontent, the Communists with the honest "progressives," or he must occupy a middle ground which is untenable in the political arena.

The election of a President, however high-minded he may be, does not insure the honest government. There have been more cries of fraud and corruption raised of the so-called progressive Wilson Democratic administration than any other in many years. There have been authentic cases of wide-spread corruption in revolutionary Russia. The administrations of Harding and Coolidge, whom radicals are pleased to call conservatives, faced also the difficulty of protecting the government from dishonest and unscrupulous men. A new movement which sweeps into office inexperienced men without a powerful organization behind them offers greater opportunities for the unscrupulous than any other governmental force, a fact proved time and again. The elevation of Senator LaFollette through a third party movement embracing such forces as he says now are seeking to ride on his coat-tails, would offer just such opportunities.

The dilemma which Senator LaFollette faces is an argument for strong party government. It is an argument for the retention of the present alignment of forces, pledged to honest and sane government, with traditions and power to smash corruption and smother corrupt forces. Though dishonesty may appear at times to have the upper hand, it is true—and the reflex of the recent disclosures in Washington is sufficient evidence—that leaders of the Republican party have been high-minded and honest in their service to the government, and with the firm and resolute Coolidge to lead the party in the future, there is every reason for preferring such a government to one made up of the forces of discontent.

"Labor turnover" is a big item of expense in industry. Some corporations find, by their cost systems, that it costs them as much as $150 every time a skilled employee leaves and a new one has to be broken in.

Why not keep employees on the job by giving them this $150 apiece periodically instead of spending it in labor turnover? This is already being done by the Anaconda Copper Co. in Chile, which pays "attendance bonuses."

Some one has said that an organization is as hard to get together and keep together as a church choir.

FRENCH

One important development in Europe is that the French are taxing themselves more heavily. Recently tax receipts totaled a fifth more than a year ago.

The English for several years have been foaming about the low tax rate in France—lower capita than in England, by far. That was because France was mortgaging the future, expecting to get more out of Germany than now appears possible.

The French seem to be changing their estimates.

FARMERS

Farmers of America now are banded together in more than 10,000 organizations, Department of Agriculture reports.

What they need is one big national organization. So do consumers. Industrial producers and distributors in general get the best of the bargain because they are organized. Until consumers and farmers organize, they will have the disadvantage of a disorganized army fighting a united army headed by an intelligent general staff.

Shivers creep up a city man's spine when he contemplates what would happen if the farmers ever struck.

The new secretary of navy should be kept busy in Washington where everything is at sea.

Editorial Review

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

AN AMBASSADOR RESIGNS

When Cyrus E. Woods, American Ambassador to Japan, took the Teapot Dome it was with high hopes of further cementing the good will then existing between the two countries.

Two decades of distrust has come to an end. The Washington Arms Conference had uprooted the sprouting seeds of war that had been sown in the Pacific. The Japanese earthquake of September, 1923, furthered the opportunities of America and America's Ambassador. He worked tirelessly "above and beyond the call of duty" to help a stricken people. America felt a just pride in him. He became a hero to the Japanese people.

In early April Congress began the destruction of much that had been done by the Washington Arms Conference, the American earthquake relief and Ambassador Woods.

Alarmed by the Capitol Hill attitude on immigration, Ambassador Woods, Japan's representative in Washington, wrote his "Gentlemen's Agreement" letter, making use of the unfortunate phrase "grave consequences." By mid-April the Senate, in a blaze of mistaken resentment, had abrogated the "Gentlemen's Agreement" and voted immediate Japanese exclusion.

The edifice of good-will Ambassador Woods spent months in rearing is tottering.

Ambassador Woods has asked to be relieved from his post. The State Department insists his resignation has nothing to do with the immigration bill or Japanese exclusion. The reason given is that the ambassador wishes to return to America because of the illness of a member of his family.

In ordinary times this would be reason enough, but these are not ordinary times in Japanese-American relations. While the crisis has been muted and muffled, there is nevertheless a crisis. It is fair to assume that in such a crisis an ambassador will remain at his post during that crisis if he approves the course of his own nation.

An ambassador who does not approve the policy of his own nation asks to be relieved. Some days ago Tokyo Ambassador Woods publicly expressed his disapproval of the immigration bill. The news of his intended resignation, known to the State Department about May 1, followed.

Mr. Woods' retirement comes at an awkward and embarrassing time. Few Americans stand so high in Japan or could be so helpful in bringing about a renewed understanding between Tokyo and Washington. Official Washington will make the best of a new and disappointing turn in a delicate situation.

MR. YOUNG'S APPOINTMENT

A Washington dispatch to the Times-Record this morning contains intelligence that Hon. George M. Young, congressman from this district, last week appointed Judge of the Criminal Court of New York by the President Coolidge and later confirmed by the senate, will remain in congress until the end of the present session unless the session is unduly prolonged. The new judge is receiving telegrams and letters of congratulations from Sen. LaFollette and elsewhere and it is certainly a great pleasure for the editor of this paper to join with Mr. Young's many friends in offering belated congratulations. We regret very much having Mr. Young and his estimable family move permanently from Valley City where they have lived so many years and have so many good friends.

Mr. Young has done well and as a judge we feel that he will give efficient service to the government in that position. Our best wishes go out to him for continued success in his new work. Valley City will always have a warm greeting for the Youngs when they come back to the old home town. —Valley City Times-Record.

Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, by agreement of all concerned, is to be temporary chairman of the national Democratic convention which meets in New York City on Tuesday, June 24. Certainly Pat is a good man for the job. He can point with pride and view with alarm as well as any man of any party whatsoever. His full name, by the way, is Byron Patton Harrison, but no one knows that unless he takes time to look it up. The senator went to New York to attend the obsequies of the late Charles F. Murphy, and rumor has it that at that time he was slated for this honor. Be that as it may, everyone is happy. Pat will be fair.

He is supposed to be at least mildly for the nomination of McAdoo, and that statement was made on the spot when the selection was made, expressed himself in the language of the lamented Roosevelt as being "delighted."

There is a suspicion that Harrison is a selection of the Smith boomers. However that may be, the Mr. Roosevelt who ran with Cox in 1920, and who is now managing Smith's campaign, said he was "very greatly pleased."

Not to be out of the orchestra, a man from Alabama, who handles some of the details of the Senate of Alabama, was right in line for the eloquent Mississippi. All this is perfectly satisfactory.

Maytime Madness

One wonders if Mr. Bryan was consulted. Probably not. He was not around the hotel anyway.

It is not known how the agreed-upon chairman stands on the mooted abrogation of the two-thirds rule. But that is not material. How he will exorcise the grand old party! How he will prove that the untried can spend billions and collect only millions! He is credited with being a clever joker. Many a quip will be springing on the admiring and listening multitude.—Duluth Herald.

A Thought

HIGH AND BROAD JUMP IN YARD

Backyard Playgrounds

By W. C. Batchelor
Jumping for either height or distance holds the interest of an athletically inclined boy or girl from an early age until maturity. These activities are of the more vigorous type, calling for accuracy, speed and maximum effort.

The equipment is so simple that almost any boy of 12 or more can construct it. The cost is almost negligible. Here are two types of home-made high jump standards:

Material needed:
Two pieces, 1 1/2 by 1 1/2 inches by 6 feet (uprights).
One piece, 1 inch by 1 1/2 inches by 6 feet (brace and base).
Two pounds No. 8 casing nails.

A good standard can also be made by placing the upright in an old bucket filled with concrete. A five-gallon can cut through the middle will make ideal forms for a pair of standard bases. A piece should be nailed across the bottom of the upright to anchor it in the cement.

Nails may be driven in the upright every inch or every two inches, or holes may be bored through, and movable spikes used. A bamboo fishing pole makes the best cross-bar, but a rope weighted at the ends will do.

In a regular meet a space 12 feet square is spaced up and secured usually mixed with the soil to keep it from packing. However, a much smaller pit will suffice for practice.

For the broad jump a piece of 2 by 6-inch board, 3 or 4 feet long, set flush with the ground and spiked at the ends, completes the "take-off." The pit is 5 feet wide and should be spaded up from the take-off to a point a little further than can be jumped.

The runway for a distance of 40 to 60 feet should be level. Sometimes the same pit can be used for both high and broad jumping, the run way for the broad being alongside of the house, with the pit in the back yard. The standards for high jump would be placed at the side of the pit, as illustrated above.

"Where are the boys?" he asked, looking around. "I haven't seen them since the day they were born. That was just one month ago today. This is their birthday and I've brought them each a present."

"Why, Granddaddy?" exclaimed Mrs. Frog. "How absent-minded you are getting! They're out swimming. They never come into the house at all."

"Why not?" demanded the old gentleman frog. "Why don't they ever come into the house, I'd like to know? And why am I getting absent-minded?"

"Because they haven't any legs yet and can't walk," said Mrs. Frog. "They're still little polly-wogs and have to stay in the 'was' tub."

"Suddenly" Granddaddy thought of his birthday present. Overhead and no feet to wear them. He blushed all over, so he did.

"Excuse me, I forgot something at the store," he said hastily. "I'll be right back." And before Mrs. Frog could get her breath he was gone.

He burst into Mister Bagg's store and made everybody jump. "These overboots are the right size a tall," he declared. "You'll have to take 'em all back—and please give me three bags of candy instead."

THEY GET WHAT THEY WANT

By Albert Apple

A new kind of confidence game is worked in Boston. Joe went to the movies, sporting his $725 diamond ring. A pretty girl, about 16, sat next to him. She admired the sparkler. My, she'd always wanted to see a diamond like that on her finger. Joe was obliging. Did he have the correct time? He did. What, so late in the afternoon? Would Joe mind holding her hat while she telephoned mama she'd be late for dinner? Sure. Joe still has the hat. The bobbed-haired girl still has the diamond.

The ease with which women wrap men around their fingers and make them jump through the hoop, is as pathetic as it is ancient. You recall the saying that it takes a mother 21 years to make a man of her son, and only 21 seconds for a pretty face to make a fool of him. And the older they are, the harder they fall.

It's all for the best—part of nature's cunning system of biology.

About 20 years ago, when women began flocking into business after generations of seclusion in the American home, business men began to sense the commercial possibilities of a pretty face and soft voice.

The telephone companies tried male operations early in the game. But customers were so rough with "Central" over the wire, and called at the office to stage a fight so often, that the companies began to hire girls.

Restaurant men know that waitresses bring more business than waiters, as a rule. Each pretty waitress attracts her own following.

It's the same in stores catering to men, all the way from clothing to tobacco.

Beauty is a commercial asset. They're even turning elevators over to fascinating young misses. Biology is getting on a business basis.

Governments are incredibly stupid in not using women as diplomats. Germany, for instance. She might get better terms at a reparations conference if she were represented by ravishing vamps instead of solemn statistical gents with heads like gourds.

Women have become a fixed institution as lobbyists around most legislative bodies. Why not try them internationally?

And their beauty wouldn't be the only advantage. Feminine intuition and practical psychology would help, not to mention their brain power. They'd take to the game like a duck to water. In former centuries women like Du Barry, powers behind the thrones, made whole nations their toys.

The Tangle

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRECOTT TO RUTH ELLISON

DEAR RUTH:

I'm awfully glad you like my purchases. I thoroughly enjoyed selecting them, and I'm convinced enough to believe that I might make a very good business woman in time.

Do you know, I'm very happy to think that we started this show, my dear. I didn't know that economic independence could be not only such a comfort but such a source of satisfaction to a woman. When I came home I want to talk to you about enlarging the shop. You know I have six thousand dollars in perfectly good money. If you think it would be very glad to do so. When I think of what we have done on three thousand dollars, I feel that we are not only great business women, but great financiers.

What I wanted to do, dear, in this letter, was not to put either you or myself on the back, but to tell you that I have had another talk with Karl. I rather suspect that Alice is aware of the fact that I went to luncheon with him yesterday. He came to me in the morning just after breakfast and asked me if I would do this. At first I did not see how I could do it, but Karl always has been so good to me, and he seemed so cast down, that I finally decided to get the burden off his shoulders.

As luck would have it, that was the day that Alice had made up her mind to motor out to Arrowhead for luncheon. She told us about it during the morning as though it were a foregone conclusion that we all would do just exactly as she had planned, and she was utterly surprised when I told her that I had some shopping for you to do which would probably take most of the day, and I expected to take a motor or late hurried lunch down town.

Mother who was looking rather done up, said that she intended to rest all day; and dad explained that he had a business conference on with some steel men who were in New York.

"Then, Karl, you and I will go alone, together," she said.

"I'm awfully sorry," answered Karl, "but I have a conference with my lawyer. So many things have come up since I have been abroad, you know, and anticipating that we were leaving soon for Pittsburgh, I set today for the conference."

"What do you good people think I'm going to do all this time?" asked Alice in petulant surprise.

Upon this dad spoke up rather sternly.

"It would seem to me, Alice, that you are capable of entertaining or amusing yourself for a few hours, while the rest of your family go about their individual business."

"But, dad, began Alice, "No but about it," interrupted dad. "You must have shopping to do."

"I have, but I thought Karl would go with me."

"em up and I'll take 'em along. It's a good thing I know how to walk on three legs."

When the rubbers were wrapped up in a nice neat package, the old frog gentleman hopped away to the place in the mud where the pond was, where his mother lived in a lily-pod house.

GIANTS TAKE TWO CONTESTS AS REDS SPLIT

Dazzy Vance, Brooklyn Pitching Ace, Is Defeated by The New Yorkers

Chicago, May 29.—The New York Giants continue to win most of their games. They took a twin bill yesterday from Brooklyn, 6 to 5, and 4 to 2. In the first game Dazzy Vance, Brooklyn pitching ace, was defeated. In the second Burleigh Grimes went down to defeat, while Bentley and Ryan pitched good ball for New York. Jacques Fournier, Brooklyn first sacker, got his ninth homer of the season.

The Chicago Cubs drove Cooper and Lundgren off the mound yesterday and beat Pittsburgh, 9 to 6. Cook weakened for St. Louis and allowed the Cincinnati Reds to win the second game of a double header, 5 to 3. In the first, with Southern pitching fine ball, St. Louis shut out the Reds, 6 to 0.

"I got a 'hoss' from my pitching," Jimmy Ring, being the winning pitcher, Wilson's home run in the seventh scored Stone as well.

In the Americans Boston and Philadelphia divided a double header, leaving Boston in a tie for first place with the New York Yankees. Philadelphia took the first contest, 2 to 1 and Boston the second, 1 to 0, with the veteran Jack Quinn pitching fine ball.

Detroit divided a double bill, winning 4 to 3, and losing 7 to 0, with the St. Louis Browns. Davis pitched the shut-out victory.

Shaute blanked the Chicago White Sox, 5 to 0, but Cleveland lost the second game, 13 to 6. Joe Sewell got a homer.

White Hot pitched good ball against Walter Johnson, and the Yankees won, 7 to 4, in the first game of a double header, but New York lost the second to Washington, 6 to 1.

Billy Evans Says

This is the age of youth—but you can't make the harness horses believe it.

The season of 1923, for example, will find two notable "war horses" in Harry J. S. (2:05 1-2), 16 years old, and Peter Coley (2:04 1-4), 10 years old, both ready for another grueling campaign on the big-time tracks.

Peter Coley has been campaigned hard and consistently every year since 1916 when he took a two-year-old record of 2:24 1-4.

In 1919, as a five-year-old, under the tutelage of Charles Valentine, the Columbus trainer, he took a mark of 2:07 1-4 at North Randall, Cleveland, and from then on proved to be one of the best. He won 10 out of 18 races in 1920.

The following years he was obliged to perform in the fastest classes, being forced to meet Persimmon, Greyhound, E. C. Colorado, Millie Irwin and many other fleet ones.

As strange as it may seem, he did not take his present record until 1922, at Toledo, at which time he defeated the mighty mare, Nedda.

At 10, he has started in 82 races, won 23 of these, was second in 13, third in 14, fourth in nine and unplaced but 18 times. And now in the stable of Will Crozier, the Hartford horseman, he is ready to be "up and at 'em again."

Carpentier Looks Great, But Like Most Other Vets He May Be Little More Than a Shell

By Joe Williams
 Michigan City, Ind., May 29.—The Georges Carpentier who is here to fight Tommy Gibbons, best of the American light heavyweights, is well conditioned, finely trained, and to all outward appearances, ready for the struggle of his young aristocratic existence.

I watched him do his regal stuff today against a miscellaneous assortment of sparring partners that included the veteran featherweight, Charley Ledoux, and Paul Fritsch, lightweight champion of Europe.

Carpentier has filled out noticeably in the region of the chest and shoulders and is generally more robust in appearance.

"You are heavier than when you fought Dempsey," I suggested as he lay on the rubber's table in his dressing room after the workout.

"And better," he added, with a ring of confidence that in no wise suggested arrogance.

It is evident that Carpentier's successive defeats at the hands of Dempsey and Sikki have not curbed his innate optimism. He admits frankly now that he isn't in Dempsey's class.

Don't Ask Them About Mons. Sikki
 The Sikki debacle is something that is not discussed at any great length either by the Frenchman or his voluble manager, Descamps.

You ask, "What about this Sikki guy?" and Carpentier and Descamps shrug their shoulders in unison and answer, "Oh, that buffoon."

Your sense of discretion, if any, persuades you to drop the subject. You make mental note, however, ton, Del., owned by H. J. Stoeckle, was foaled in 1908 and started his career in 1911, winning five out of five races that year for Herman Tyson, who developed him. Since that year he has raced early and often, except in 1919, when he was laid up.

It is interesting to note that as he won all of his starts in 1911 so did he win seven out of his seven starts in 1920. He was then 12 years of age, no slight achievement for a trotter which has been raced so hard for so many years.

While he went numerous great races it is the consensus of opinion among horsemen that the greatest of all was at Goshen, N. Y., in 1917, when he encountered that remarkable little black stallion Binnville, owned by George H. Tipling of Cleveland, and was forced to trot in 2:09 3-4 and 2:07 3-4, then a new world's half-mile track record, to defeat the Cleveland star.

So much for the past of Peter Coley and Harry J. S. But what of the future? Will old age take its toll or will they succumb to their younger and stronger opponents? It's hard to tell.

Marston's Ball Hits Spectator and It Helps Him Win at Flossmoor

 Few golfers ever reach the purple heights without an encouraging smile from the gods of luck. Not that golf is a game where luck always decides the important issues but it often seems that sheer skill is not quite enough.

No one played better golf than Max Marston in the national amateur at Flossmoor last summer, no one was more deserving of victory,

COOPERATIVE MARKETING IS 'BIG BUSINESS'

Now Runs Into Billions of Dollars a Year in Aggregate, Speaker Says

URGES WHEAT POOLING

Walton Peteet, Secretary of Cooperative Bodies, Speaks in Bismarck

Cooperative marketing has come to be among the biggest business of the country, Walton Peteet of Chicago, secretary of the National Council of Cooperative Marketing Associations, told an audience in the city Auditorium last night.

The southern cotton pool will handle $500,000,000 worth of cotton this year, he said. The California fruit growers and the southern tobacco growers pool both run into the hundreds of millions of dollars, he said.

The pooling of wheat in the Northwest is not a bigger business than these, he indicated.

Where Farmer Suffers
 "Farmers are the only large class of people who sell at the buyer's price and buy at the seller's price; the only class which has no voice in determining values of the commodities it handles. A farmer's prosperity is measured by the difference between what he buys and what he sells."

Mr. Peteet showed that the reason for the inequalities which exist in agricultural prices is individual selling. "Other industries long ago adopted policies of group selling," he said. "Farmers of North Dakota or any other state will never be able to sell their products individually at a fair value. Wheat selling is, in a way, like trading horses. When a man trades horses, he is really putting his own knowledge of horses against the other fellows and the man who knows the most about horses gets the better of the trade. It is the same way with wheat. When a farmer starts out to sell his wheat, he puts his knowledge of wheat conditions against the knowledge of the buyer. But the grain dealer has expert knowledge of the world's market, and the general conditions of business and commerce, while the farmer has no knowledge of any of these things."

At Buyer's Mercy
 "Until you are in a position to know as much about the value of your products as the man who buys, you are really at his mercy. Individually your knowledge of marketing values, of finance, you know very little of the ability of the world to consume your wheat; you do not know the international factors that affect prices. At least, you do not know as much about these things as the men who spend every day of their lives in the ramifications of the trade. You haven't time in your life to produce and also make yourself equal in marketing knowledge to those with whom you deal."

"It is only by pooling wheat and employing experts that the farmer can hope to compete with the organized grain buying business."

Mr. Peteet declared that there is a great deal of misunderstanding regarding the purpose of cooperative marketing. Many are under the impression that pooling only aims to save some of the handling costs, which the farmer pays on his grain.

Real Purpose of Plan
 "The real purpose is to eliminate the whole wasteful practice of blind dumping of wheat on the market and to substitute a plan of orderly merchandising. By merchandising, I mean selling by the farmers in the same way that business men sell their goods, as manufacturers sell automobiles, or as the Steel corporation sells steel rails. We mean putting wheat where it is needed and in the quantity in which it is needed and securing the price that market conditions justify. You will avoid glutting the markets, will avoid cross-cross railroad hauls, and will secure whatever fair price is."

"It is not a question of whether you are going to market your wheat cooperatively—you will come to it sooner or later, or else go out of business. This is just as inevitable as the tides. The only question is whether you are going to decide to market cooperatively now—this year—or whether you are going to wait a few more years before you take advantage of the opportunity to pool your wheat."

Mr. Peteet explained that North Dakota is among the first of the states to receive attention in a national way in wheat marketing. Kansas is also in the throes of a campaign and Indiana is successfully organizing a pool, Oklahoma, according to Mr. Peteet, already has approximately 30 per cent of the 1921 crop contracted for the pool, with a possibility of reaching a 60 per cent sign up before harvest.

"The eyes of the nation," said Mr. Peteet, "are on North Dakota. If you fail, you set back the whole cooperative movement—if you succeed, you give a new impetus to the whole movement; you restore to the growers control of their own business."

TRADE RECORD

Big Growth In Exports of Manufactures

An increase of about $200,000,000 in the fiscal year 1924 and $400,000,000 as compared with 1922.

The share which they form of the total domestic exports in the current year is 48% against 47% in 1914, the year immediately preceding the war, 45% in 1910, 35% in 1900, 21% in 1890 and 15% in 1880, all of these figures relating to fiscal years. The prospective total of the fiscal year 1924, $2,086,000,000, is double that of the year preceding the war when manufactures totaled but $1,099,000,000, and practically treble that of 1910 which stood at but $766,981,000, while the total in 1900 was but $485,000,000.

Nearly every class of manufactures except cotton goods shared in this growth in the current fiscal year, adds the Trade Record. Iron and steel manufactures, for example, totaled in the 3 months ending with February 1924, the latest available figures, $171,000,000 against $118,000,000, tin plate 14 1/2 million dollars against 4 1/2 million, black steel sheets 13 1/4 million dollars against 5 million; wire nails 85,000,000 pounds against 45,000,000, refined copper $77,000,000 against $58,000,000, electrical machinery in which we have made marked progress in recent years shows a total of practically $44,000,000 against $36,000,000 in the same months of the preceding year, agricultural machinery $37,000,000 against $31,000,000, machinery $206,000,000, commercial against $162,000,000, cars, motor trucks, etc. $12,000,000 against $6,500,000, passenger automobiles $64,000,000 against $38,000,000, chemicals and allied products $78,000,000 against $69,000,000, lumber under the title of "boards, planks, and scantlings" $56,000,000 against $40,000,000, gasoline 630,000 gallons against 396,000, and refined mineral oils in all forms 2,305,000 gallons against 1,770,000 in the same months of last year.

This big gain in the exports of manufactures in the current fiscal year makes itself especially apparent in the increased movement to those sections of the world to which manufactures form the bulk of our exports. To Asia, for example, the total exports of the 9 months ending with March are $452,000,000 against only $327,000,000 in the corresponding months of the preceding year, to Oceania $116,000,000 against $87,000,000, to South America $206,000,000 against $189,000,000, and to North America as a whole $785,000,000 against $750,000,000. To Cuba which takes largely of our manufactures the total is $45,000,000 against $12,000,000, to Australia $96,000,000 against $69,000,000, while the totals to nearly all of the countries of the non-manufacturing world show greater or less increases in the 9 months of the current fiscal year when compared with the same period of last year.

Exports of domestic manufactures from the United States in the fiscal year 1924 which ends with next month will materially exceed those of the fiscal years 1923 or 1922. While they will not of course equal those during or immediately following the war they will apparently exceed those of the fiscal year 1923 by about $200,000,000, and those of the fiscal year 1922 by more than $400,000,000, and will also be much greater than in any year preceding the war. The latest figures on the exports of manufactures, says the Trade Record of The National City Bank of New York, shows that the exportation of the two great groups "manufactures ready for consumption" and "manufactures for further use in manufacturing" aggregated $1,564,000,000 in the 9 months ending with March 1924, against but $1,344,000,000 in the same months of the preceding year, and if they continue at the same rate during the remaining three months of the current fiscal year they will aggregate about $2,086,000,000 for the fiscal year 1924 against $1,883,000,000 in the fiscal year 1923, and $1,623,000,000 in 1922.

Cooperative marketing has come to be among the biggest business of the country, Walton Peteet of Chicago, secretary of the National Council of Cooperative Marketing Associations, told an audience in the city Auditorium last night.

WALLACE GIVES CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING RULES

Secretary of Agriculture Defines Ten Principles Essential to Success for Bank Association.

Ten principles requisite for the success of co-operative marketing plans have been prepared by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace for the State Bank Division of the American Bankers Association, which has just published a nation-wide compilation of views, experiences and discussions regarding the movement. Mr. Wallace's principles are:

1. A co-operative organization must be controlled by its members, not as shareholders or investors, but as producers employing the facilities of the organization.

2. A co-operative association is not created to make a profit on invested capital above the usual rate of interest, but to profitably market the products of its members at the lowest possible cost.

3. A co-operative association should be organized around a single commodity, or a group of commodities, for which the same marketing machinery, methods and channels are employed.

4. The organization should have sufficient volume of business to enable it to operate efficiently and economically, and should control this business through definite legal contracts with its members.

5. The organization must perform definite functions. The organization of a co-operative marketing association is not an end in itself.

6. The members must understand the purposes of the organization and be kept fully informed regarding its activities and problems.

7. A co-operative association should have expert management. The duties of the manager of a co-operative association are more difficult than those of the manager of a commercial enterprise of equal size. The manager must not only conduct the business of the organization efficiently, but he must recognize the close, personal interest of every member in that business, and be able to maintain harmonious contacts with each individual.

8. Proper accounting is essential. Accounting is one phase of management but is so important in co-operative marketing that it is given special mention. The management cannot be properly advised regarding the status of the organization, nor properly inform the members, without accurate records.

A sound financial policy is also a part of management, but are of sufficient importance to be placed under a separate heading. One essential is that a co-operative association should build up adequate reserves in order that it may have the financial strength necessary to weather periods of stress.

WHAT BANKERS THINK OF THE LABOR BANKS

With the advent of the labor bank three years ago, there was widespread speculation as to what labor turning capitalist would mean.

By bold calculations the most imaginative pictured a coup d'état in finance wrought by the mobilization of labor's savings and strategic investments in the key industries. Prophecies of disaster came from the quarters of the other extremists.

Taking the middle ground was the great group of conservative bankers who saw the bank as a link—rather than a wedge—between capital and labor. It was their opinion that the experience gained in the management of the labor banks would bring a real understanding of the business of handling money and investments and develop a knowledge of the problems of capital. By making capitalists out of the workers, directing the investment of their funds in safe securities instead of wild-cat stocks and by promoting thrift, they saw good flowing from the enterprise. With the mystery taken out of banking, the bubble of fabulous earnings pricked, and the fight of an individual to his accumulated savings finally established, it was patent that the radicals would be disarmed of their thunder against the much-maligned capitalist system. On the other hand, it was conceded that, with the rise of labor as a factor in finance, opportunities for the abuse of the worker by the bludgeon of credit control would be more restricted.

In the appraisal of the movement, the events of the past two years have largely justified the view of the conservatives, although the time is still too short to permit a mature judgment. It is quite clear, however, that labor has not revolutionized banking, the control of credit has not been diverted from its former channels.—American Bankers Association Journal.

For too often is the word "don't" worked to death.

Good habits for a child to be "disciplined" in are obedience, self-reliance, honesty, self-control, truthfulness and general service.

To get old ones, however, does not mean to know-how, nag and fight.

The breeding of fear is one of the worst consequences of "discipline." Threats of punishment do not make for other truthfulness or sincerity. The child learns to be and hide anything to avoid punishment; it learns to fear.

On the other hand, the child can not grow up without restraint, or respect for his parents.

The task is one necessitating intelligence and tact.

But it's worth any effort you can make.

ABOLITION OF FLAT HAIL TAX POSSIBILITY

Would Cut Taxes $250,000 a Year If Eliminated By Legislature

QUESTIONS INVOLVED

Success of the method of handling state hail warrants now in use, which resulted in cash being available to pay the warrants last winter, may bring before the next session of the legislature the question of the advisability of abolishing the flat average tax altogether as unnecessary.

All of the $1,600,000 loan made by the state hail department and industrial commission to make possible payment of warrants last winter has been repaid by the state treasurer with the exception of $200,000, and there is more than enough in the fund at this time to pay the balance due.

Payment of the warrants in cash was made possible when the legislature reduced the 3-cent-an-acre flat tax to one cent an acre, at a saving in taxes of approximately $544,000 a year, the three cent tax having yielded $816,412.88 in 1922. Abolition of the one cent tax would make a further reduction in taxes, on the basis of the 1922 levy for this purpose, $272,204.26.

The question is expected to be raised, and arguments advanced that abolition of the tax, particularly during a time when taxpayers are complaining of the load it could be made without injury to the hail insurance department.

The state department borrowed $1,600,000 last December 15 to add to the funds of about a million and a half dollars on hand to pay warrants in cash. Six hundred thousand dollars of the loan was repaid April 15, $800,000 was repaid May 15 and $200,000 is due June 15, with $300,000 on hand at the present time to meet the last payment. By the time hail warrants are due next winter, for the 1924 losses, the state fund should have a large surplus, and with a comparatively small loan, warrants can be paid as due. The surplus of the hail insurance fund was $2,909,081.82 on March 31, 1922, and it has been considerably augmented since then.

The question expected to be thrashed out, as a result of the examination of the condition of the department, is whether or not it would be better to pay the expense involved in interest on a loan and reduce taxes, or to proceed to levy the taxes to quickly build up a surplus to several million dollars.

LAW FOR WEEK DAY RELIGIOUS SCHOOLS URGED

Norwegian Lutheran Church
Closes Its Conference
Held in Fargo

Fargo, N. D., May 29.—In resolutions adopted late Wednesday at the closing session of the annual convention of the North Dakota district of America, the next North Dakota legislature is requested to enact laws making it possible for children, whose parents so desire to be released from the public schools for a maximum of three hours per week, to attend regularly established week-day church schools.

The resolutions declare that the "prevalence of crime, the open defiance of authority behind the law and low moral standards, constitute a menace to the welfare of the church," and that, "the time now available for the churches to instruct the young in religion and sound morality through the Sunday schools, vacation schools, and confirmation classes, is very in jeopardy because of unavoidable conditions."

For these reasons the resolutions declare and because, "in the opinion of George F. Shafer, attorney general, there now is no law on the statutes of North Dakota, making adequate provision for the release of the children from the public schools for attendance upon the generally understood forms of week-day church schools," it is deemed imperative that some provisions be made for this class of training.

Reaffirming its belief in the canonical books of the Old and New Testaments, as "inspired by the Spirit of God," and confessing its adherence to the Apostolic confession of faith, "in accordance with the words of the testaments," the convention in another set of resolutions, declared that the Lutheran church "cannot, before God, tolerate in its service, anyone who holds views contrary to the before-mentioned confession of faith."
